UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

v.

MUSTAFA OZSUSAMLAR,

Defendant.

No. 05-CR-1077-1 (RA)

ORDER

RONNIE ABRAMS, United States District Judge:

On November 15, 2021, the Court received a letter from Mr. Ozsusamlar. Dkt. 195. In the letter, he seeks to correct purported “clerical mistakes and error” from his 2007 sentencing. Of the various federal rules of criminal procedure that Mr. Ozsusamlar cites in the letter, the only arguably applicable ones are Rule 32, Rule 35, Rule 36, and Rule 52(b). The Court considers any potential argument that might flow from each of these rules. See Graham v. Henderson, 89 F.3d 75, 79 (2d Cir. 1996) (courts interpret filings by pro se litigants to “raise the strongest arguments that they suggest”).

Mr. Ozsusamlar cites Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 32’s requirement that “[b]efore imposing sentence, the court must . . . address the defendant personally in order to permit the defendant to speak or present any information to mitigate the sentence.” Fed. R. Crim. P. 32(i)(4)(A)(ii); see Hill v. United States, 368 U.S. 424, 426 (1962) (discussing an earlier version of this rule and explaining that it “requires a district judge before imposing sentence to afford every convicted defendant an opportunity personally to speak in his own behalf”). The sentencing transcript, which the Court attaches to this Order, makes clear that Judge Leisure did so. Sentencing Transcript at 16, 24. Accordingly, any Rule 32 argument Mr. Ozsusamlar raises is unmeritorious.

Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure 35 provides that “[w]ithin 14 days after sentencing, the court may correct a sentence that resulted from arithmetical, technical, or other clear error.” Fed. R. Crim. P. 35(a). Because far more than 14 days have passed since Mr. Ozsusamlar was sentenced in 2007, any argument under Rule 35 is untimely.

Rule 36 states that “[a]fter giving any notice it considers appropriate, the court may at any time correct a clerical error in a judgment, order, or other part of the record, or correct an error in the record arising from oversight or omission.” Fed. R. Crim. P. 36. The Court observes no clerical error in the sentence or any other error in the record. Finally, Rule 52(b) states that “[a] plain error that affects substantial rights may be considered even though it was not brought to the court’s attention.” Fed. R. Crim. P. 52(b). The Court finds no such plain error here.

Although Mr. Ozsusamlar’s letter is largely characterized as a Rule 35 motion—which, again, would be untimely—some of his arguments appear to deviate from that Rule or any other Rule. Namely, Mr. Ozsusamlar seems to allege that he is currently being held past the end date of the sentence imposed by Judge Leisure. He asserts that at sentencing, Judge Leisure stated that Mr. Ozsusamlar’s sentence would begin to run as of the date of his indictment in that case. Mr. Ozsusamlar contends that based on this oral ruling, he completed his sentence 30 months ago because he was indicted on October 5, 2005.

The relevant colloquy from the sentencing transcript reads as follows:

MR. SIEGEL: Your Honor, the defendant has a technical question and the defendant would like to know when for computation purposes, when does your sentence begin to run? Does it run from when the crime occurred, which was sometime in October, September-October 2005, or does it run or commence from a later time?

THE COURT: It may well be that as soon as he was arrested and he was in custody the time started to run. Maybe the government can tell us.

MS. ROCAH: Obviously this is a calculation that the Bureau of Prisons will do and I suppose if the defendant has objections to their calculations he can raise it then since sitting here now we don’t know what it will be. It’s something done by the Bureau of Prisons. But my understanding is he was in custody on the previous conviction and so I am not sure if he would have received credit yet on this sentence but I don't really want to speculate because it's a Bureau of Prison's calculation.

Sentencing Transcript at 43. Although Mr. Ozsusamlar suggests that the sentencing transcript has been "altered," he gives no legitimate reason for the Court to suspect that this transcript does not accurately represent what was stated at sentencing. And on the plain face of the transcript, Judge Leisure did not say that the sentence began to run at indictment or at arrest; he deferred to the Government on that question, and the Government rightly responded that this determination was within the province of the Bureau of Prisons. See, e.g., Cintron v. Warden, F.C.I. Otisville, 52 F. Supp. 3d 654, 655 (S.D.N.Y. 2014) ("It is the responsibility of the BOP, rather than the courts to determine the commencement of a federal sentence and calculate any credit toward that sentence for time already served."); United States v. Labeille-Soto, 163 F.3d 93, 98 (2d Cir. 1998) (same). Mr. Ozsusamlar gives the Court no reason to infer that the BOP's calculation of his sentence, including its date of commencement and any calculation of credit, is inaccurate.¹

Accordingly, Mr. Ozsusamlar's motion is denied. The Clerk of Court is respectfully directed to mail a copy of this order to Mr. Ozsusamlar.

SO ORDERED.

¹ Mr. Ozsusamlar also invokes United States v. Quintana-Gomez, 521 F.3d 495 (5th Cir. 2008), in which the Fifth Circuit held that a district judge does not have the "authority to order that its sentence run consecutively to an anticipated but not-yet-imposed federal sentence." Id. at 498. But Mr. Ozsusamlar's prior sentence had already been imposed by then-Chief Judge Wood when he was sentenced in the instant case. Sentencing Transcript at 38. Finally, he argues that Judge Leisure erred in stating that the applicable criminal history category was IV, citing to paragraph 68 of his presentence investigation report. But paragraph 68 of the report does assign a criminal history category of IV, see Presentence Investigation Report (filed with the Court), a calculation to which Mr. Ozsusamlar did not object at sentencing. See Sentencing Transcript at 9-10.

(Case called)

THE COURT: We will swear in the interpreters.

(Interpreters sworn - A.J. ELTERMAN and ASIYE KAY)

THE COURT: As I have done in the past with the cases by the father and son, Osman, I have made a summary statement because I think it's helpful to the higher court, and also different issues have been raised by the father and son. There are some similarities but it's important to keep them separate for considerations at sentencing and other matters that we have had to come up.

So I am going to do the same thing here before I hear from the parties. Although the background of this case has been well covered at numerous post-trial conferences that we have had following the conviction by a jury, I will summarize the events that have led up to today's sentencing.

On April 20, 2006 a jury convicted Mustafa Ozsusamlar, who I will refer to as either Mustafa or the defendant in this proceeding, and his son, Osman Ozsusamlar, who I will refer to as Osman, of conspiracy to commit a murder for hire and the substantive crime of murder for hire in violation of 18 U.S.C. Section 1958, and conspiracy to commit extortion in violation of 18 U.S.C. Section 1951.

I want to ask the interpreters to tell me if I am moving too quickly.

I know the defendant speaks English and occasionally

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 he has responded in English but at the same time he has 2 requested that we have translations and that he have an 3 opportunity to speak in Turkish, as he deems appropriate, or in 4 English, and we will accommodate him.

5 Mr. Siegel, who is standby counsel, has conversed with 6 him in English but he has used the interpreter when he deemed 7 it appropriate.

8 All three counts were charged in a superseding
9 indictment filed on January 4, 2006. As I said, the defendants 10 are father and son. Mustafa is the father and Osman is the 11 son. Mustafa is before the court today for sentencing.

12 The events underlying the charges took place between 13 August 2005 and October 2005. The case involved a man who owed 14 approximately $283,000 to the two defendants. Mustafa, while 15 incarcerated at the Metropolitan Correctional Center (the 16 "MCC") pending sentencing following his conviction in a 17 separate case, asked a fellow prisoner -- who was a cooperating 18 witness ("CW") -- if he knew of someone who could collect the 19 debt, by force if necessary, and kill the man, and possibly 20 also his wife, after the debt was collected. Mustafa offered 21 to pay the killer 10 percent of the money collected. After the 22 CW informed the government of Mustafa's request, the government 23 arranged for an undercover agent (the "Agent") named "Joe" to 24 pose as a collector/hit man. The CW provided thee agent's 25 information to Mustafa.

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 Mustafa, via phone, directed Osman to contact the 2 agent. Osman did so, and arranged a meeting at which the two 3 discussed the details of the scheme. Some time later, the 4 agent called Osman to tell him that he had collected the debt
5 and carried out the scheme. Osman and the agent made 6 arrangements to meet, and Osman was arrested when he arrived at 7 the agreed-upon location. Mustafa was arrested the next 8 morning. The intended victims were not harmed.

9 Subdivision II. Post trial activities.

10 Following the verdict, while still represented by his 11 trial counsel, Barry Turner, Esq., Mustafa sent numerous 12 communications directly to the court regarding his 13 representation as well as his concerns about and challenges to 14 the jury verdict. Based on Mustafa's written requests, the 15 court held conferences on August 26, 2006, March 20, 2007, 16 April 4, 2007, and June 5, 2007 to discuss his concerns. At 17 the April 4, 2007 conference, the court granted Mustafa's 18 request to proceed pro se. Martin J. Siegel, Esq., who is here 19 today, from the Criminal Justice Act panel currently serves as 20 Mustafa's standby counsel.

21 On June 5, 2007, the court granted Mustafa's request 22 for a hearing in order to place on the record evidence 23 regarding certain of Mustafa's pro se motions, including a 24 request for a judgment of acquittal pursuant to Rule 29 of the 25 Federal Rules of Criminal procedure, for a new trial pursuant

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 to Rule 33 of the Federal Rules of Criminal procedure, and more
2 dismissal of the charges against him pursuant to Rule 12(b)(2) 3 of the Federal Rules of Criminal procedure. That hearing was 4 conducted on August 14, 2007. By opinion and order dated 5 September 20, 2007, Mustafa's motions were denied.

6 The Pre-Sentence Report ("PSR") for Mustafa was 7 prepared on January 23, 2007 and revised on February 21, 2007.
8 The revision reflected that on January 29, 2007, Mustafa was 9 sentenced to 235 months imprisonment by Chief Judge Kimba M.
10 Wood in a separate criminal case. Through his standby counsel, 11 Mustafa submitted his sentencing memorandum on October 9, 2007.
12 The government briefly responded on October 10, 2007 in order
13 to clarify the record as it related to some of Mustafa's 14 objections. Mustafa submitted another sentencing-related 15 letter dated October 19, 2007, to which the government did not 16 respond.

17 Sub-heading III. Sentencing Post-Booker.

18 I will now turn to the sentencing of the defendant 19 based on the submissions made by the parties. First, I will 20 discuss the factors that I am required to consider in 21 determining your sentence.

22 As a result of two opinions issued in 2005, the 23 sentencing guidelines are no longer mandatory. United States 24 v. Booker, 534 U.S. 220, 243-44 (2005); see United States v.
25 Fernandez, 443 F.3d 19, 26 (2d Cir. 2006). Today, "pursuant to

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 the remedy opinion, the now advisory guidelines are to be 2 considered, together with the other factors set forth in 18
3 U.S.C. Section 3553(a), by judges fashioning sentences."
4 Fernandez, 443 F.3d at 26. The Second Circuit has articulated 5 the following steps for a sentencing court to follow: "A 6 sentence will satisfy the requirements of Booker and the Sixth 7 Amendment if the sentencing judge (1) calculates the relevant 8 guidelines range, including any applicable departure under the 9 guidelines system; (2) considers the calculated guidelines
10 range, along with the other Section 3553(a) factors and (3) 11 imposes a reasonable sentence." Id.

12 Subdivision A, calculation of the guidelines range.

13 In United States v. Crosby, 397 F.3d 103, 112 (2d Cir.
14 2005), the Second Circuit instructed sentencing courts that 15 "the applicable guidelines range is normally to be determined 16 in the same manner as before Booker/Fanfan." Thus, as was the 17 case before Booker, facts relied on in sentencing need only be 18 proven by a preponderance of the evidence. See United States
19 v. Vaughn, 430 F.3d 518, 525 (2d Cir. 2005) (Sotomayor, J.) 20 (noting that in the Second Circuit "judicial authority to find 21 facts relevant to sentencing by a preponderance of the evidence 22 survives Booker," and finding that "district courts remain 23 statutorily obliged to consider the guidelines in the same 24 manner as before Booker") (quotations and citations omitted).

25 Subdivision B. Consideration of the guidelines range

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 and the Section 3553(a) factors.

2 While usually "a guidelines sentence will fall 3 comfortably within the broad range of sentences that would be 4 reasonable in the particular circumstances," the Second 5 Circuit -- in accord with other courts of appeals -- has 6 "declined to establish any presumption, rebuttable or 7 otherwise, that a guidelines sentence is reasonable." 8 Fernandez, 443 F.3d at 27. Consequently, a district court is 9 required to "consider" the advisory guidelines range, an 10 inquiry that is impossible to define and, thus, better left to 11 the discretion of the sentencing judge. Crosby, 397 F.3d at 12 113 ("we think it more consonant with the day-to-day role of 13 district judges in imposing sentences and the episodic role of 14 appellate judges in reviewing sentences, especially under the 15 new applicable standard of reasonableness, to permit the 16 concept of consideration in the context of the applicable 17 guidelines range to evolve as district judges faithfully 18 perform their statutory duties.").

19 The Second Circuit recently held that such 20 consideration does not include a "requirement that a sentencing 21 judge precisely identify either the factors set forth in 22 Section 3553(a) or specific arguments bearing on the 23 implementation of those factors in order to comply with its 24 duty to consider all the Section 3553(a) factors along with the 25 applicable guidelines range." Fernandez, 443 F.3d at 29;

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 accord United States v. Flemming, 397 F.3d 95, 100 (2d Cir.
2 2005) (Newman, J.) ("as long as the judge is aware of both the 3 statutory requirements and the sentencing range or ranges that 4 are arguably applicable, and nothing in the record indicates 5 misunderstanding about such materials or misperception about 6 their relevance, we will accept that the requisite 7 consideration has occurred.").

8 While a sentencing judge is not required to articulate 9 its consideration of each and every Section 3553(a) factor, the 10 Second Circuit has made clear that it "continues to encourage 11 sentencing judges to facilitate our review by providing 12 complete and detailed explanations regarding their sentencing 13 decisions." Fernandez, 443 F.3d at 31 n.8; Crosby, 397 F.3d 14 at 116 ("district judges will, of course, appreciate that 15 whatever they say or write in explaining their reasons for 16 electing to impose a guidelines sentence or for deciding to 17 impose a non-guidelines sentence will significantly aid this 18 court in performing its duty to review the sentence for 19 reasonableness.").

20 The Section 3553(a) factors are:

- 21 1. The nature and circumstances of the offense and 22 the history and characteristics of the defendant;
- 23 2. The need for the sentence imposed to reflect the 24 seriousness of the offense, to promote respect for the law, to 25 provide just punishment for the offense, to afford adequate

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 deterrence to criminal conduct, to protect the public from 2 further crimes of the defendant, and to provide the defendant 3 with needed educational or vocational training, medical care, 4 or other correctional treatment in the most effective manner;

5 3. The kinds of sentences available;

6 4. The kind of sentence and the sentencing range 7 provided for by the sentencing guidelines;

8 5. Any pertinent policy statement issued by the 9 Sentencing Commission;

10 6. The need to avoid unwarranted sentence disparities 11 among defendants with similar records who have been found 12 guilty of similar conduct; and,

13 7. The need to provide restitution to any victims of 14 the offense.

15 18 U.S.C. Section 3553(a).

16 Subdivision paragraph IV. The parties' proposals to 17 the court.

18 I will now address the PSR and Mustafa's October 9 and 19 October 19 sentencing memoranda. As I stated earlier, the 20 government did not submit a sentencing memorandum, but only 21 responded to a few of Mustafa's objections in order to clarify 22 the record.

23 Subdivision A. Probation.

24 Probation determined that Mustafa's criminal history 25 category was IV and calculated his total offense level to be

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 33.

2 Mustafa's criminal history category was determined by 3 the sum of his criminal history points. Under U.S.S.G. Section 4 4A1.1A, any prior sentence exceeding one year and one month
5 equals 3 points. Mustafa had two such sentences, one in 1995 6 and the other in 2007, yielding 6 criminal history points.
7 Additionally, under U.S.S.G. Section 4A1.1D, 2 points were 8 added because Mustafa committed the instant offense while 9 imprisoned. Accordingly, Mustafa had a total of 8 criminal 10 history points, placing him in criminal history category IV.

11 Probation's calculation of the offense level of 33 was 12 based on their grouping of the counts into two groups.
13 Specifically, pursuant to Section 3D1.2 of the guidelines, 14 which allows for the grouping of counts with substantially the 15 same harm, Counts 1 and 2 -- conspiracy to commit murder for 16 hire and murder for hire in violation of 18 U.S.C. 1958 -- were 17 grouped together into "Group One." The base offense level for 18 these counts was calculated based on Section 2E1.4 of the 19 guidelines, which provides for a base offense level of 32.

20 The remaining Count 3 (conspiracy to commit extortion 21 in violation of 18 U.S.C. 951) is its own group, "Group Two."
22 The base offense level for this count was calculated based on 23 U.S.S.G. Section 2B3.2, which provides for a base offense level 24 of 18. While there were no adjustments recommended for Group 25 One, leaving the total offense level at 32, probation

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 recommended 3 enhancements to the Group Two base offense level
2 for specific offense characteristics:

3 1. An increase by two levels because the offense
4 involved an expressed or implied threat of death, bodily 5 injury, or kidnapping. U.S.S.G. Section 2B3.2B1;

6 2. An increase of 3 levels because the amount 7 demanded was more than $250,000 but less than $800,000.
8 U.S.S.G. Section 2B3.1B7D; and,

9 3. An increase of three levels because the offense
10 involved preparation to carry out a threat of death. U.S.S.G.
11 Section 2B3.2(3)(B)(I).

12 Accordingly, the total offense level for Group Two is 13 26. Probation then determined the combined offense level 14 pursuant to U.S.S.G. Section 3D1.4. According to the 15 calculation, Group One counts as one unit, and Group Two counts 16 as one half unit. This results in a combined offense level of 17 33.

18 The resulting guidelines range for criminal history
19 category IV and an offense level of 33 is 188-235 months.
20 Probation recommends a sentence of 188 months imprisonment.
21 Probation also recommends that this sentence be followed by 3 22 years of supervised release. Notably, probation states that, 23 pursuant to Section 5G1.3 of the guidelines, this sentence must 24 run consecutively to the 235 month sentence imposed by Chief 25 Judge Wood in United States v. Ozoglu et al., 02 Cr. 763.

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 Finally, probation recommends waiving the fine because Mustafa
2 is subject to a $20,000 fine imposed by Chief Judge Wood.
3 Probation believes this sentenced adequately reflects the 4 serious nature of the defendant's offense, and would 5 sufficiently further the criminal justice system's objectives 6 of punishment and deterrence.

7 Subdivision B. Mustafa.

8 Mustafa submitted a memorandum to the court dated 9 October 9, 2007, listing 26 objections to the PSR. As the 10 government notes in its response, the vast majority of 11 Mustafa's submission consists of "attempts to reargue the trial 12 evidence." Other objections have no bearing on Mustafa's 13 sentencing. For the record, the court notes that paragraph 9 14 of the PSR should be clarified to state that, after a jury 15 conviction on a variety of charges, District Judge Debevoise 16 entered a judgment of acquittal on those charges related to 17 hostage-taking. Further, that same paragraph should state that 18 Mustafa's 1995 conviction actually took place in May, and not 19 in September. Paragraph 64 of the PSR should read that Mustafa 20 was convicted on May 14, 2004. Mustafa does make two arguments 21 related to his sentence. First, he asks the court to "sentence 22 the defendant to a term that reflects that no one was actually 23 threatened, harmed or injured." (Defendant's 10/9 memo at 4.) 24 Second, he urges the court to impose a concurrent sentence to 25 Chief Judge Wood's 235-month sentence. (Id.)

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 Mustafa's second submission to the court, dated 2 October 19, 2007, rehashes arguments he has already raised 3 following trial. Namely, Mustafa argues that evidence used in 4 his trial was fabricated, altered and hidden, witnesses were 5 hidden and tainted by the government, and transcripts from the 6 trial were altered. (Defendant's 10/19 memo at 1-4.) This 7 court generally addressed these issues in an opinion and order 8 on September 20, 2007, finding Mustafa's claims to be wholly 9 without merit. Of course, Mustafa may argue these points in an 10 appeal to the Second Circuit Court of Appeals, but they have 11 already been disposed of here, and are thus not pertinent to 12 today's sentencing. Mustafa's October 19 letter does raise two 13 points related to sentencing. First, defendant requests a 14 departure for giving substantial assistance to the authorities.
15 He states that he "provided the government with evidence that 16 helped in arresting and convicting people involved in crime .
17 . . . " (Id. at 5.) Second, defendant asks the court to 18 consider his community service. Specifically, Mustafa leads 19 prayer services for fellow inmates, donated funds to the 20 Turkish education department to construct a school, and served 21 as mayor of a town in Turkey from 1970 to 1974. (Id..)

22 I am going to take a ten-minute recess at this point 23 and then I am going to hear from the parties when we come back 24 with anything that they wish to add.

25 We will take a ten-minute recess.

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 (Recess)

2 THE COURT: Another advantage of a recess before 3 continuing, it allows me to review my notes and I do see an 4 error I made where I indicated that the sentence before Chief 5 Judge Wood consisted of a fine of -- and I said $200,000 and it
6 was $20,000. So I make that correction for the record. I 7 think probably the reporter picked it up when I was going 8 through it.

9 Now, I think it's a good time to hear from both sides 10 before I actually calculate the sentence with regard to this 11 guidelines range. So before I make that determination, I might 12 ask standby counsel first whether he has anything he wishes to 13 add.

14 MR. SIEGEL: Good morning, your Honor.

15 If it please the court, I think the defendant will be 16 addressing court in detail as far as certain issues. The only 17 thing I would like to raise is, number one, that you recommend 18 to the Bureau of Prisons that he be confined to a facility as 19 close to New York as possible and, in addition, if he can be in 20 the same facility as his son is. That would be one 21 recommendation.

22 Just on the issue of the concurrent versus the 23 consecutive, the Pre-Sentence Report makes reference for 24 authority to a guidelines provision. However, I do not believe 25 that such a requirement is found in the statute, such as in

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 924(c), a violation would require by statute a mandatory 2 consecutive sentence. I think on the offense here calling for 3 a consecutive sentence, they make reference to a guidelines 4 statute and as the court is aware the guidelines are advisory 5 versus being mandatory, such as the statutory provision. So my 6 only comments would be what I submitted to the court is 7 whatever sentence the court imposes and I think the Probation
8 Department recommended on two counts 120 months to run 9 concurrent with a sentence of Count 3 of 188 months. The only 10 thing I would ask is that that sentence run concurrent with 11 that of Judge Wood's.

12 And the defendant would like to address the court, 13 your Honor.

14 THE COURT: Let's me give the government a chance to 15 consider what you are saying. They might want to comment on 16 it.

17 I have given consideration prior to our coming down 18 here today with regard to what you are raising and why don't we 19 see how I handle it, and then I will hear from both sides at 20 this that point.

21 MR. SIEGEL: And just for the record, I am referring 22 to page 21 of the report, the second paragraph, where it reads
23 pursuant to Section 5G1.3A the instant offense must run 24 consecutive to the undischarged term of imprisonment, and again 25 5G1 is not a statute but it's a guidelines provision.

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 THE COURT: Well, the government can be considering 2 your comments and hear what I have to say when I have further 3 dialogue on it.

4 Now I will hear from Mustafa before I impose sentence.

5 Any comment?

6 THE DEFENDANT: Yes, your Honor. I have eternal 7 unlimited respect to the honorable judge in this court. Your 8 Honor, whether your judgment will be in my favor or against me, 9 I believe that your decision will reflect the human rights 10 facts of this country and given the background, your own 11 conscientiousness and your long years of service as a judge, 12 and that you will be doing this with a peace of mind, and I 13 trust that. Your Honor had already mentioned that I should 14 bring forth certain statements that might have impact in the 15 future in my case, for the future, so I would like to in 16 particular mention something pertaining to the CDs that you had 17 pointed out that I can do that.

18 If possible I would like to propose that as attorney 19 for the appeals, attorney Elizabeth Fink, should be appointed.

20 THE COURT: The name is Finkelstein, is that correct?

21 MR. SIEGEL: It's Elizabeth Fink, your Honor.

22 THE DEFENDANT: The address is 13 Gaye Street, New 23 York, New York 10014.

24 THE COURT: Is she on the CJA panel?

25 MR. SIEGEL: I think Ms. Fink is on the panel, your

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 Honor.

2 THE COURT: I will be hearing from the government not 3 at this moment on it but the government will comment at any 4 time they wish to with regard to any of these matters that are 5 being raised at this point or after I impose the sentence. So 6 I will leave it up to the government. Some of these matters 7 are to be considered after the sentence, I suppose.

8 THE DEFENDANT: Your Honor, my second request, if 9 possible I would like to have detectives assigned to do some 10 research and investigation pertaining to my case.

11 My third request is that after my sentence has been 12 spoken that my sentence be served, that I serve my sentence at 13 least 5 to 6 months in the prison that I am presently in and 14 the reason for this is, your Honor, is because I have four 15 separate cases, two of which are in the Southern District and 16 two of which are civil cases and in order to pursue them I need 17 to be close to this area.

18 THE COURT: I can make recommendations to the Bureau 19 of Prisons and they often follow my recommendations, but the 20 final decision with regard to where you are placed is the 21 Bureau of Prison's decision and they will certainly extend 22 every courtesy to the court, but they make the final decision.
23 But the government may have something to add too.

24 Please continue.

25 THE DEFENDANT: I can see that your Honor has already

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 mentioned the points that I wanted to mention here. The sealed 2 record of the CD dated September 18, 2005 was mailed to me by 3 the judge two weeks ago. This CD was shown to the jury as 4 Government Exhibit 21 as a sealed evidence, a sealed exhibit.

5 THE COURT: In which case are you talking about it was 6 shown to the jury, is it my case or someone else?

7 THE DEFENDANT: This case, your Honor.

8 THE COURT: You are saying that Government Exhibit 21 9 used in the case before me was shown to the jury?

10 THE DEFENDANT: Yes.

11 THE COURT: And what is your point? What are you 12 requesting me to do about that?

13 THE DEFENDANT: It is evident here that this sealed 14 document was not taken into seal and for 160 days it was under 15 seal.

16 THE COURT: Do you understand what his grievance is?
17 I ask the government counsel.

18 MS. ROCAH: No, your Honor, I don't.

19 THE COURT: I don't understand.

20 MR. SIEGEL: Your Honor, I think there was an issue 21 when a CD was taken, and I think his position is that one of 22 the CDs that was used at trial I think the defendant contends 23 that there was a hiatus of 160 days from when the recording was 24 made to when it was placed under seal.

25 Is that correct?

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 THE DEFENDANT: Yes.

2 MR. SIEGEL: And I think the defendant's position, 3 your Honor, is that during that 160-day period that the CD was 4 tampered with and therefore it was corrupted.

5 THE COURT: This goes to tampering, an issue which he 6 has already raised.

7 Does the government have anything to add to that? Do 8 you need more time to consider it?

9 MS. ROCAH: No, your Honor, I will address it.

10 THE COURT: All right. The government will respond 11 before we leave here today.

12 THE DEFENDANT: The judge permitted $4,000 to be used 13 for the forensic testing of the CD. There was an amount of 14 $3200 paid to the effect that the forensic test was done but 15 there is no report that we have in our hand and here it doesn't 16 show anywhere that it went to forensic testing. Why was this 17 money paid? This is the government's duty to find out if 18 somebody is stealing this money.

19 THE COURT: Does the government understand what his 20 grievance is?

21 MS. ROCAH: Your Honor, I think the defendant is 22 referring to this envelope that the CD was contained in, the 23 FBI envelope in which the CD had been contained which has some 24 dates on it. Basically every time the CD is taken out of the 25 sealed envelope it's logged in and out by the agent taking it

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 in and out and he seems to be referring to the fact that there
2 is no indication on that FBI envelope about the test or the CD 3 being sent for forensic testing. That is the best I can 4 understand what he is saying.

5 I don't think there would be any indication on that 6 envelope of a CD being sent to forensic testing since it's not 7 the government who sent it. It was something requested by the 8 defendant and we never had anything to do with any kind of 9 forensic testing. We never sent anything for forensic testing.
10 We never got a report. It's just not something the government 11 is involved with.

12 THE COURT: It's something that should have been 13 raised during the trial rather than sentencing.

14 MS. ROCAH: Yes.

15 THE COURT: So he is raising it today but, in any 16 event, as I have said before he can raise on appeal these 17 issues, but I have done the best I can to explain to him. He 18 doesn't seem to listen to his lawyers, which has been part of 19 of his problem, and he continues to be taking positions which 20 don't necessarily make sense. But, in any event, we must move 21 ahead.

22 What else have you got to say here today?

23 THE DEFENDANT: This is not a position or some kind of 24 opinion that I am mentioning but I received it two weeks 25 before.

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 THE COURT: You should have taken it up with your 2 lawyer. You are now your own lawyer, so I am hearing you but I 3 think you are wasting time.

4 Let's move ahead.

5 What else have you got to raise here today?

6 THE DEFENDANT: There is a certain point I would like 7 to mention.

8 At the hearing on August 14 there was a T-Mobile
9 telephone bill that I showed here, 973, 650, and also a 10 telephone with a number 5806. I showed this telephone bill 11 here to the court but when I went to the Marshals Service it 12 was taken away from my file. Who took it, I don't know.

13 Another point I would like to make, your Honor, is 14 that the address of 349 12th Avenue in Paterson, New Jersey, my 15 son Osman lives at his home on the third floor -- I am sorry, 16 at the same address with Osman, my other son, Ramazan lives on 17 the third floor. The garage door to this home was broken and 18 there was a search undertaken, performed there. Two weeks 19 later, two weeks after that the door to the basement was broken 20 and the inside was searched. Again, two weeks later again the 21 third floor door was opened and someone went inside. Only 22 written documents, family photographs and CDs were taken. And 23 the camera was removed, taken away, removing it out of its 24 case, and the door was locked again and the people left.

25 When a thief comes into someone's home they steal

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 articles, goods, they don't steal written documents and they 2 don't take a camera removing it from its case. They take it 3 together with the case.

4 This is something that was done by Campanella and the 5 staff working at his office. We think, we guess, that this was 6 done by them in order to eliminate evidence. At the MDC, the 7 prison where I serve my sentence, my CDs were eliminated or 8 destroyed, disappeared, and the CDs of my son were taken away 9 and exchanged with other ones, replaced with other ones.

10 The fact that these things have been done, and apart 11 from that my son Ramazan is under pressure by people working at 12 Campanella's office. A person like my son may have committed 13 an offense, possibly, but New Jersey is a different state.
14 There is a judge, a prosecutor, police and FBI there. Instead 15 of all these authorities getting involved, why is Campanella's 16 office getting involved and pursuing this? Why do they feel 17 the need to question, interrogate somebody who has his full 18 civil liberties under pressure?

19 Where are the human rights? Where is democracy?
20 Where is liberty?

21 THE COURT: Let me hear from the government. I don't 22 know whether he is raising again matters he has already raised 23 or whether these are the first time that he has voiced these 24 additional items. We know we have been dealing with him over 25 the period of time and that is the reason the sentencing has

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 been delayed as long as it has been and I held conferences, as 2 I indicated, at the beginning of these proceedings to address
3 his concerns and we tried to keep up with his unending 4 complaints and criticisms.

5 Are these being raised for the first time today as far 6 as the government is concerned?

7 MR. SIEGEL: Your Honor, if I can just relate what the 8 defendant's position is because he told me about this the other 9 day when I met with him at the MDC. Apparently he feels there 10 is a major conspiracy going on which is being directed by 11 Special Agent Jack Campanella against the defendant and his 12 family and his position is that Special Agent Campanella is 13 directing this group of people to go in, search his home on 14 other occasions, to basically try to coerce his son into 15 violating the law. He also feels Special Agent Campanella had 16 advised the marshals to remove certain documents from his file 17 after the last court appearance because they felt or Special 18 Agent Campanella felt these documents may have been 19 advantageous to his case. And while he was in the marshals' 20 lock-up apparently Special Agent Campanella or Ms. Rocah or 21 someone else from the prosecutorial team directed the marshals 22 to remove items from his legal file.

23 I think that is what the defendant is alleging, your 24 Honor.

25 THE COURT: Let me hear from the government.

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 MS. ROCAH: Your Honor, I hesitate to say that these 2 have never been raised before only because the defendant has 3 previously raised just about every conceivable claim he could 4 raise. So I think in some form or another he has raised these 5 before and your Honor has I think basically said that there is 6 no evidence in the record anywhere of any of these 7 unsubstantiated claims.

8 To the extent they haven't been raised before 9 obviously this is not the appropriate time to raise them but I 10 think more importantly in the multitude of hearings and 11 conferences and arguments and of course from the trial itself, 12 there is obviously no evidence in the record of any of these 13 paranoid claims on the defendant's part. And they are totally 14 extraneous to the issues related to trial and his conviction 15 and his sentencing.

16 THE COURT: All right.

17 Is there anything else you wish to raise today?

18 Maybe you should listen to your lawyer as to what is 19 appropriate to be raising at your sentencing and what are 20 matters which are not appropriate.

21 Have you talked to him, Mr. Siegel, at all about 22 bringing common sense and reason to him as a client of yours?

23 MR. SIEGEL: Your Honor, without obviously divulging 24 attorney-client communications, the defendant and I have had 25 many, many conversations about how the matter should proceed.

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 But I think the defendant feels that it should be proceeding in 2 a particular manner. He has prepared a written statement to 3 the court which he is reading right now and the defendant is 4 the captain of his ship.

5 THE COURT: He is his own lawyer.

6 MR. SIEGEL: If the court wishes to view that ship as 7 the Titanic, that is something else, but the defendant is 8 prepared and he has written a statement and he has certain 9 positions about the conduct of the prosecution and the agents 10 involved in this case.

11 THE COURT: Well, the lawyer representing as standby 12 counsel his son raised the issue that he has never in his 13 considerable experience as a criminal defense lawyer had a 14 client that hurt himself more post conviction by his conduct 15 than his son did.

16 I hate to see the same thing happening with his father 17 but he doesn't seem to listen to anyone and he has his own mind 18 of how he wants to handle things and there are things that 19 should be raised and there are things that are extraneous and 20 are not appropriate at the time of his sentence. He has the 21 chance to appeal with respect to the matters that have happened 22 and my rulings in connection with them, but we have to move 23 ahead. We have reached the point where unless the government 24 tells me they are matters that are concerning the government 25 and that are matters that I should take into consideration, we

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 have to move ahead.

2 What does the government say?

3 MS. ROCAH: Your Honor, the government has no reason 4 whatsoever to delay the sentencing.

5 THE COURT: All right. If he has a statement that he 6 has prepared he might want to hand it in as an exhibit and it 7 will be part of the record on appeal. Otherwise he can read it 8 if he wishes to.

9 Why don't you talk to him, Mr. Siegel, as to the best 10 way to proceed now. He seems to be bringing up matters that 11 shouldn't be considered at the time of the sentencing but he 12 has done this before, and he is doing it again.

13 Why don't you talk to him and see how you recommend he 14 proceed.

15 MR. SIEGEL: Your Honor, I know he has prepared a 16 statement. The statement is not in English. It's in Turkish.
17 I don't think it's all that lengthy. I think he has read most 18 of it. I would suggest we just proceed.

19 THE COURT: All right, why don't we proceed.

20 THE DEFENDANT: I would like to remind only one thing
21 to your Honor. The witness named Mabrouk, who is a cooperating 22 witness, and the case agent Campanella and the prosecutor, Ms.
23 Rocah, and in my case with Judge Wood the case agent is 24 Campanella and the prosecutors are Southwell and Rocah.

25 That is it, thank you.

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 THE INTERPRETER: I think he wanted to point out that 2 the both people were involved in both cases.

3 THE DEFENDANT: Thank you very much.

4 THE COURT: He has completed his comments.

5 Does the government want to add anything more based on 6 what he said?

7 MS. ROCAH: I wanted to address a couple of things 8 raised by Mr. Siegel and the defendant just for clarity of the 9 record. I will be very brief. First of all -- not raised by 10 Mr. Siegel but raised by the defendant in his last letter which 11 the government did not respond to in writing. One of claims 12 was that there was substantial assistance on his part to the 13 government. I just want to say for the record that there was 14 absolutely no substantial assistance by the defendant. The 15 government has never credited any information that this 16 defendant has attempted at times to send in incoherent letters 17 to the government. They have never acted on it. They have 18 never used it. There is just no substantial assistance 19 whatsoever that has led to any FBI or other agency cases.

20 Most of these issues we have been over again and again 21 and as your has pointed out, the defendant will have a chance 22 to appeal and the record will speak for itself. This issue 23 about the tampering with the CD and the sealing of the 24 envelope, the FBI envelope in which the CD was contained which 25 marks each time that the CD was taken in and out of evidence

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 for proffer purposes, for what purpose it was taken in and out,
2 is in evidence as a Government exhibit. The government
3 produced a copy of that to the defendant as he requested. It 4 wasn't the first time he has seen it as he is claiming now 5 because it was also available at trial. The dates on that will 6 speak for itself. The defendant's claims about there being a 7 lapse in time are just frivolous. And I hate to even credit 8 them with any response but I am just trying to give a little 9 bit of clarity to the record for the appeal.

10 The issue about the concurrent versus consecutive 11 time, I believe Mr. Siegel is correct that it's mandatory but 12 under the guidelines it's mandatory that it be consecutive and 13 obviously the guidelines are advisory. The government would 14 request, however, that guidelines or no guidelines that this 15 court impose a consecutive sentence because this crime, which 16 is obviously extremely serious in nature, was completely 17 separate from the first case which he was tried before Judge 18 Wood, which was a fraud identity theft, a large one, in which, 19 by the way, I was not involved in. I was not a prosecutor in 20 the case. That was only Mr. Southwell. But, in any event, the 21 defendant clearly should be punished separately for those two 22 cases because one has absolutely nothing to do with the other 23 and it makes the crime that he committed here substantially 24 more serious that he was able to commit it and attempt to 25 commit such a serious crime from prison while facing trial

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 before another judge in this courthouse.

2 I guess the last thing that I just wanted to address,
3 and we can talk about this after your Honor imposes sentence, 4 but the request that the defendant be imprisoned with his son 5 and his request that he be held here for a certain amount of 6 time and all of his various demands about that, obviously as 7 your Honor pointed out the court can make recommendations. The 8 government doesn't usually take a position on such things, 9 although I will say in this case I think that the Bureau of 10 Prisons already is aware and will be made further aware that 11 the very nature of this crime here had to do with the son and 12 the father conspiring together and that the government's belief 13 is when the two of them are together they present a much 14 greater danger to society, not to mention to FBI agents and 15 prosecutors who are responsible for them being in jail. And so 16 while we normally don't take a position I think here we would 17 recommend to the Bureau of Prisons that they be separated and 18 my understanding is that the Bureau of Prisons will be doing 19 that based on the nature of the crime here.

20 THE COURT: How about him getting yet another lawyer 21 appointed which he is requesting as appellate counsel who would 22 have to familiarize herself with the entire record at taxpayer 23 expense?

24 MS. ROCAH: Your Honor, it seems indulgent in a way
25 that the government obviously would not recommend. However, I

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 hesitate to take a position only because I believe Mr. Siegel 2 is actually going to be making a motion to have himself removed 3 and so I will let Mr. Siegel and the court speak to that. We 4 do think it's a bit wasteful at this point.

5 THE COURT: I would be remiss if I didn't express my 6 appreciation to the standby counsel for both the father and son 7 and the diligent way they went about their work and tried to be 8 of assistance to their clients. Mr. Siegel is to be 9 complimented for the time and effort that he has put into 10 representing Mustafa even though, as he rightly said, 11 attorney-client privilege is such that he should not be asked 12 to comment on his representation and his conversations. But I 13 do want to commend him for what I have noticed here in court of 14 his patience and his wanting to help his client, as was true in 15 Mustafa's son's case too. So it's a credit to the CJA panel 16 that lawyers of your quality are available and make the efforts 17 you do. I am very impressed by the way you went about, Mr.
18 Siegel, your representation of Mustafa. But I will hear from 19 you.

20 MR. SIEGEL: Thank you very much. I appreciate those 21 comments, your Honor, truly I do, as a member of the bar and as 22 an individual.

23 While Ms. Rocah was speaking, the defendant handed me 24 Government Exhibit 25 and he likely wants to make mention of 25 page 3 of that exhibit. Apparently there is a comment, and

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 again I am just reflecting what he wants on the record, but 2 apparently there were conversations mentioned on page 3 of that 3 document where there appear to be people speaking Arabic and I 4 believe the conversations here were in Turkish, which is an 5 entirely different language than Arabic.

6 In addition, your Honor, based upon my representation
7 of the defendant all along, I am going to make an application 8 to be relieved at this point after the notice of appeal is 9 filed and I think Ms. Fink might be willing to take over the 10 case. I think based upon my representation of Mr. Ozsusamlar 11 and his feelings about having new counsel, I think it's 12 probably in everybody's best interest that after this 13 proceeding that the court allow me to be relieved as counsel.

14 THE COURT: All right. I will take that under 15 advisement but the government isn't opposing your application, 16 as I understand it.

17 MS. ROCAH: That is correct, your Honor.

18 THE COURT: And we don't know at this point whether 19 Ms. Fink has been contacted and has indicated a willingness to 20 proceed.

21 Does the government know?

22 MS. ROCAH: I have no idea, your Honor. I hadn't 23 heard about that until today.

24 MR. SIEGEL: Just bear with me, your Honor.

25 (Pause)

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 MR. SIEGEL: I don't think the defendant has spoken to 2 Ms. Fink, your Honor.

3 THE COURT: I think it's appropriate, Mr. Siegel, 4 based on all of your time and effort and conscientious work on 5 behalf of your client, that the court grant your application as 6 soon as new counsel is appointed.

7 Would this be standby counsel or appellate counsel?
8 You might talk to your client to find out the role of the 9 replaced counsel.

10 MR. SIEGEL: I think he indicated this would be 11 appellate counsel, your Honor.

12 THE COURT: All right. So that we will move ahead 13 with that consideration, but you will remain as counsel until 14 we do have a person in place --

15 MR. SIEGEL: Yes, your Honor.

16 THE COURT: -- representing Mustafa.

17 I think at this point, as time has gone by, I hoped 18 maybe to give the sentence, which isn't going to be that long.
19 We only have about an hour more but I think probably with the 20 time being what it is, we all should proceed after lunch 21 because otherwise I may not be through by 1 o'clock at this 22 point.

23 Are counsel available if we take our lunch recess now 24 and complete the matter within about an hour?

25 MR. SIEGEL: Yes, your Honor, that is fine with me.

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 THE COURT: How about government counsel?

2 MS. ROCAH: Your Honor, I have some things scheduled 3 this afternoon. I can try to move them. I didn't know we were 4 coming back after lunch.

5 THE COURT: I will go ahead. Why don't I see how we 6 go. There isn't that much left.

7 I am not going to request that counsel stand with his 8 client during this period as we do sometimes because I think 9 it's good for you both to be seated and, Mr. Mustafa, feel free 10 to talk to your lawyer as we proceed to the extent you want to 11 get advice.

12 Subdivision V. Determination of defendant's sentence.

13 Subdivision A. Calculation of the guideline range.

14 I will now discuss the court's determination of 15 defendant's sentence. First, I will explain the calculation of 16 the guidelines range.

17 Probation found that defendant's criminal history
18 category is IV and total offense level is 33. Under the plain 19 language of Section 3D1.2 of the guidelines, however, 32 is the 20 appropriate total offense level. Though defendant did not 21 raise this point in his sentencing memoranda, the court will 22 apply the same reduction in offense level to Mustafa as it
23 applied to his co-defendant, Osman Ozsusamlar. The relevant 24 guidelines provision states that counts involving 25 "substantially the same harm shall be grouped together into a

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 single group." U.S.S.G. Section 3D1.2. In defining the 2 phrase "substantially the same harm," the guidelines specify 3 that" counts involve substantially the same harm within the 4 meaning of Section 3D1.2 (a) when counts involve the same 5 victim and the same act or transaction." (U.S.S.G. Section 6 3D1.2.) There is no question here that all three counts
7 involved the same victim and the same act or transaction. As I
8 stated earlier, in categorizing Count 3 -- conspiracy to commit 9 extortion in violation of 18 U.S.C. 951 -- as a separate group, 10 probation recommended various enhancements. Because the three 11 counts in this case should be grouped together as one, a 12 detailed analysis of these recommended enhancements is 13 unnecessary. Thus, the appropriate total offense level is 32.

14 The guidelines provision for a total offense level of 15 32 and a criminal history category of IV is a term of 168-210 16 months imprisonment.

17 Defendant asks the court to consider a departure under 18 section 5K1.1 of the guidelines, which allows for a departure 19 "upon motion of the government stating that the defendant has 20 provided substantial assistance in the investigation or 21 prosecution of another person who has committed an offense . .
22 . . ." U.S.S.G. Section 5K1.1. The government has made no such 23 motion here. Further, while Mustafa states that he gave 24 information to prosecutors in 2001, he fails to provide any 25 detail relating to such assistance. The court therefore has no

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 reason to depart from the applicable guidelines range.

2 B. Consideration of Section 3553(a) factors.

3 As I am obligated to do following Booker and Crosby, I 4 turn now to consideration of the Section 3553(a) factors. As I 5 stated earlier, Mustafa asks the court to sentence him "to a 6 term that reflects that no one was actually threatened, harmed
7 or injured." (Defendant's 10/9 memo at 4.) Mustafa 8 additionally informs the court of a few acts of community
9 service. (Defendant's 10/ 19 memo at 5.) These points 10 implicate Section 3553(a)(1), which obligates the court to 11 consider the "nature and circumstances of the offense and the 12 history and characteristics of the defendant," and Section 13 3553(a)(2)(A), which requires that the sentence imposed reflects 14 the seriousness of the offense. The facts relevant under 15 Section 3553(a) do not weigh in favor of imposing a 16 non-guideline sentence. Mustafa's criminal history 17 demonstrates that he is unlikely to abide by the law and that 18 he poses a significant threat to the public. Here, Mustafa 19 orchestrated a scheme from prison, using his son Osman, to have 20 a man and his wife killed over a debt of less than $300,000.
21 Despite the fact that no one was ultimately harmed, this 22 certainly is a serious offense, and points to Mustafa's 23 continued inability to abide by the law.

24 C. Other considerations.

25 Mustafa also asks for this court's sentence to run

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 concurrently to the sentence imposed by Chief Judge Wood in 2 United States v. Ozoglu et al., 02 Cr. 763. Mustafa's 3 conviction in the instant matter is for conspiracy to commit a 4 murder for hire, murder for hire, and conspiracy to commit 5 extortion, all of which occurred while he was serving a term of 6 imprisonment for another offense. Under such circumstances, 7 the guidelines provide that "the sentence for the instant 8 offense shall be imposed to run consecutively to the 9 undischarged term of imprisonment." U.S.S.G. Section 5G1.3A.
10 However, 18 U.S.C. Section 3584 gives the court some discretion 11 to impose a concurrent sentence after weighing the factors 12 listed in 18 U.S.C. Section 3553(a). See United States v.
13 Perez, 328 F.3d 96, 97 (2d Cir. 2003) ("the courts of appeals
14 that have considered the matter now agree that U.S.S.G. Section 15 5G1.3A and 18 U.S.C. Section 3584 are not in conflict, and that 16 the consecutive sentence mandate of Section 5G1.3A precludes 17 concurrent sentencing except insofar as the sentencing judge 18 identifies grounds for a downward departure."). As I 19 previously discussed, the Section 3553(a) factors present in 20 this case do not weigh in defendant's favor. Thus, today's 21 sentence will run consecutively to the sentence imposed by 22 Chief Judge Wood.

23 D. Imposition of a reasonable sentence.

24 Under Second Circuit precedent, the final step in the 25 post Booker/Crosby sentencing environment is the imposition of

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 a reasonable sentence. Fernandez, 443 F.3d at 26. Under this 2 consideration, a court reviewing whether a sentence is 3 reasonable does so not only by looking at the sentence itself, 4 "but also at the procedures employed in arriving at the 5 sentence." Id. at 26 (citing United States v. Crosby, 397 6 F.3d 103, 114 (2d Cir. 2005) (Newman, J.); see also United 7 States v. Selioutsky, 409 F.3d 114, 118 (2d Cir. 2005). The 8 review of a sentence for reasonableness is "akin to review for 9 abuse of discretion." Fernandez, 443 F.3d at 27. Therefore, 10 a sentence will be unreasonable only where the judge imposing 11 it has "exceeded the bounds of allowable discretion, . . .
12 committed an error of law in the course of exercising 13 discretion, or made a clearly erroneous finding of fact." Id.
14 (citing Crosby, 397 F.3d at 114).

15 Further, the Fernandez court "declined to establish a 16 presumption, rebuttable or otherwise, that a guidelines 17 sentence is reasonable." Id. However, it did hold that in 18 the "overwhelming majority of cases" a guidelines sentence will 19 fall well within the range of sentences that will be considered 20 reasonable. Given that no mitigating factors apply to Mustafa, 21 imposing a sentence below the guideline range would be 22 unreasonable as "exceeding the bounds of allowable discretion."

23 Based on the considerations that I have already 24 stated, the court finds that Mustafa's criminal history 25 category is IV and his offense level is 32. This corresponds

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 to an advisory sentence range of 168-210 months.

2 Based on the written submissions as well as 3 consideration of the parties' statements today, the court 4 hereby sentences the defendant to 188 months in prison, 5 consisting of the statutory maximum 120 months for Counts 1 and 6 2, to run concurrently, and 68 months for Count 3, to run
7 consecutively. The total punishment of 188 months imprisonment
8 is to be followed by 3 years of supervised release. This 9 sentence is to run consecutively to the 235-month sentence 10 imposed by Chief Judge Kimba Wood in United States v. Ozoglu et 11 al., 02 Cr. 763.

12 The court accepts probation's recommendation that 13 defendant's fine be waived because he is subject to a $20,000 14 fine imposed by Chief Judge Wood. The defendant is ordered to 15 pay an immediate special assessment of $300 ($100 per count) to 16 the United States pursuant to 18 U.S.C. Section 3013. The 17 court accepts all other mandatory conditions of incarceration
18 recommended by probation in the PSR.

19 It's probably useful if I actually read those 20 mandatory conditions and the standard conditions from pages 21 21 to 22 of the PSR.

22 Mandatory conditions: If a period of 23 probation/supervised release is ordered, the following
24 conditions are mandatory: The defendant shall not commit 25 another federal, state or local crime. The defendant shall not

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 illegally possess a controlled substance. The defendant shall 2 not possess a firearm or destructive device.

3 The mandatory drug testing condition is suspended 4 based on the court's determination that the defendant poses a 5 low risk of future substance abuse.

6 The defendant shall cooperate in the collection of DNA 7 as directed by the probation officer.

8 Standard and special conditions.

9 The standard conditions of supervision 1-13 will apply 10 in this case with the following special conditions:

11 1. The defendant shall obey the immigration laws and 12 comply with the directives of immigration authorities.

13 The defendant is to report to the nearest probation 14 office within 72 hours of release from custody. If the 15 defendant is sentenced to any period of supervision, it is 16 recommended that the defendant be supervised by the district of 17 residence.

18 Now, the requests made during these proceedings, other 19 than what I have already covered, I will indicate for the 20 Bureau of Prisons to consider having the defendant incarcerated 21 as close to New York City as possible.

22 I do not recommend that he be incarcerated in the same 23 facility as his son for the reasons stated here by the 24 government today. Efforts will be made to obtain appellate 25 counsel to represent the defendant on appeal, and to be

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 appointed as appellate counsel.

2 I will ask Mr. Siegel to be sure that the time does 3 not run from filing a notice of appeal while he still is 4 representing him since we don't know how long it will take for 5 him to have appellate counsel in place.

6 I will leave it up to appellate counsel whether or not 7 a request will be made to have a detective assigned in 8 connection with considerations of the appeal and the government 9 may or may not oppose that application depending on the reasons 10 given.

11 Anything else that the government would want me to add 12 to that?

13 MS. ROCAH: No, your Honor.

14 This is implicit in what you said, but the defendant 15 obviously needs to be advised of his right to appeal also.

16 THE COURT: Yes.

17 MR. SIEGEL: Your Honor, I know that when the 18 defendant said he wanted a detective appointed, I think 19 probably the appropriate translation would be investigator as 20 opposed to a detective.

21 THE COURT: All right.

22 MR. SIEGEL: What I will do is once we conclude this 23 session today, I will immediately go down and file a notice of 24 appeal on his behalf.

25 The only thing is while the court was reading the

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 decision in and knowing what the sentence would be, I inquired
2 of the defendant whether he wished -- and I know sometimes this 3 can be arranged -- whether he wanted to serve his sentence here 4 or in Turkey and he indicated that he wished to serve his 5 sentence here in the United States as opposed to serve the 6 sentence in Turkey, and I guess having seen the old movie
7 Midnight Express I can appreciate why he would want to serve it 8 in this country as opposed to Turkey.

9 THE COURT: Well, that issue isn't before the court.

10 MR. SIEGEL: I understand, your Honor. But I just 11 wanted to raise this. I did advise or find out whether he 12 wanted that recommendation to be made and he does not want it 13 to be made.

14 THE COURT: Does the government think that should be 15 included?

16 MS. ROCAH: No.

17 THE COURT: I don't think it's an issue.

18 MR. SIEGEL: Okay.

19 Your Honor, just before the court --

20 THE COURT: But needless to say if I am wrong on that 21 and unexpectedly the Bureau of Prisons indicates that he should 22 be serving his sentence in Turkey, there should be an 23 application made to me in that regard and I will consider what 24 you are saying here today at that point.

25 MR. SIEGEL: As I said, the defendant said he does not

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 wish to serve his sentence in Turkey.

2 Just one other thing before the the sentence is 3 imposed. I would like to point out that if the court does in 4 fact impose a consecutive sentence upon the defendant, 5 according to my preliminary calculations, he probably will be 6 approximately 95 years old before he would be released and, 7 again, I would ask the court to reconsider whether based 8 upon -- it would effectively become a life sentence for the 9 defendant, and whether the court would reconsider and impose 10 your sentence as a concurrent as opposed to a consecutive 11 sentence.

12 THE COURT: I have fully considered the amount of time 13 involved, the seriousness of the offenses, and all the other 14 factors and the sentence I imposed was having those 15 considerations in mind, so I need not reconsider. I did impose 16 the sentence with those considerations in mind.

17 Anything else the government wished me to consider?

18 MS. ROCAH: No, not to consider, your Honor.

19 MR. SIEGEL: If the court would bear with me for one 20 moment, your Honor.

21 (Pause)

22 THE COURT: I think formally I should advise the 23 defendant, as the government suggested, that you have a right 24 to appeal and I understand your standby counsel is going to 25 actually file a notice of appeal. But the government is

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 correct in requesting that I actually advise you of your right 2 to appeal since if a notice of appeal is not filed, you will 3 waive that right.

4 MR. SIEGEL: If the court will bear with me for one 5 moment, I think the defendant would like to tell me something.

6 (Pause)

7 MR. SIEGEL: Your Honor, the defendant has a technical 8 question and the defendant would like to know when for 9 computation purposes, when does your sentence begin to run?
10 Does it run from when the crime occurred, which was sometime in 11 October, September-October 2005, or does it run or commence 12 from a later time?

13 THE COURT: It may well be that as soon as he was 14 arrested and he was in custody the time started to run. Maybe 15 the government can tell us.

16 MS. ROCAH: Obviously this is a calculation that the 17 Bureau of Prisons will do and I suppose if the defendant has 18 objections to their calculations he can raise it then since 19 sitting here now we don't know what it will be. It's something 20 done by the Bureau of Prisons. But my understanding is he was 21 in custody on the previous conviction and so I am not sure if 22 he would have received credit yet on this sentence but I don't 23 really want to speculate because it's a Bureau of Prison's 24 calculation.

25 Your Honor, I am sorry, I would hate for there to be

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 any technicalities. I believe the defendant should also be 2 advised that as to his right to appeal, he has to do it within 3 ten days from the entry of judgment.

4 THE COURT: That is correct.

5 MS. ROCAH: I know his lawyer indicated he is going to 6 file it today so it's not an issue.

7 THE COURT: It's correct that such a statement is 8 appropriate to be made and I make it. It has to be within ten 9 days of when judgment is filed by this court. There is that 10 time limitation.

11 There are so many matters that have been raised, I 12 want to be sure I cover them all. To make it clear, he 13 continues to raise issues about tampering, which seems to be an 14 endless process on his part. I have already ruled with respect 15 to these considerations.

16 To the extent he is adding or embellishing on those 17 considerations it's my same ruling with respect to it not being 18 a matter to be considered at sentencing and he does have the 19 right to appeal with respect to all my rulings. And to the 20 extent I haven't specifically denied any of his other requests 21 here, I do deny them to the extent I haven't already done it.

22 Anything else?

23 MS. ROCAH: No, your Honor, not from the government.

24 MR. SIEGEL: No, your Honor.

25 THE COURT: Thank you for your patience.

7B8SOZSUSAMLAR

1 MS. ROCAH: Thank you, your Honor.

2 MR. SIEGEL: Thank you, your Honor.
